The depths of the Australian - Netherlands relationship

Diver and cannon of the Batavia

It is a busy summer for re-evaluating the very long relationship between The Netherlands and Australia, specifically in terms of the material culture associated with the very beginnings. Recently the Australian Parliamentary Secretary for Sustainability and Urban Water, Senator Don Farrell accepted an extensive consignment of artefacts recovered from four Dutch shipwrecks found off the West Australian coast. "These artefacts are the silent witness to the dramatic events that took place 400 years ago", he said. "Together they tell a fascinating story of our joint past and our shared cultural heritage. Repatriating the objects to Australia is an expression of the close cooperation between the Australian and Netherlands' governments.

"The transfer of this unique collection also makes sense from a scientific and practical point of view," Ambassador Andreae continued. "Rather than dividing the objects, the materials will be kept as one collection, as close as possible to their original resting place. An integrated collection will also enable more extensive research in this important area of maritime archaeology."

The artefacts will be housed in the Western Australian Museum and will be available for museums and scholars, particularly in Australia and the Netherlands, for greater study and appreciation of the entire collection. To facilitate this, an online database has been developed. It is intended to transfer the ANCODS collection (see page 3) from Sydney, where it is on temporary loan, to the Western Australian Museum (WAM) in Fremantle early in the new year.

As part of the November presentations, a series of lectures were held in Australia, including Melbourne, by Professor Robert Parthesius, who coordinated the reunification of the objects.

PRINCIPAL PARTNERS

CROWN

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear NCCA members,

Now that 2010 has drawn to a close, I do hope you had some time to spend with your family and friends to reflect on what seems to have been an incredibly eventful and busy year. Even ignoring Dutch, Australian and Victorian elections, the World Cup football, the Winter Olympics and those horror Footy Finals, events seem to have followed one after the other at a rapid-fire pace. I can't help but comment on the Victorian elections: you may remember our lunch in October 2009 hosting the now-Premier Ted Baillieu. At that time we weren't so sure he would now be in government, but we do congratulate him on his election. Regardless of your political convictions, if anything, he has worked incredibly hard for this outcome.

At the NCCA we also managed to create our own 2010 highlight reel, which includes the Board elections at the October AGM. Counting our attendance at the World Cup games, the Chamber organised or was involved with around 20 events in the past year. Highlights were certainly the AC/DC behind the scenes at Etihad Stadium (organised by Suzanne Schuitman then with the ETM Group), Koninginnedag Drinks with the Board, Europeans at the Gallery and of course the Orange Ball, which made it to the pages of De Telegraaf.

We have been able to keep up the pace since the Ball through the excellent and visionary Deltaplan 2 presentation, the very successful inaugural European Women in Business event and our joint drinks with Nexus at Denmark House. Each of these events was very different, but each in its own way was a great reflection of the diverse and broad network we maintain at the NCCA.

We are definitely looking to continue to bring you many events in 2011, including regular Drinks with the Board, At Homes, business lunches, Europeans at the Gallery and many more. The first dates have been confirmed: New Year's Drinks with the Board on 27th January and our first At Home for the year at Karsten Conferencing on 16th February.

On behalf of the NCCA Board I do want to thank each of you for your continued support of the Chamber over the past year and we invite you to share your thoughts and ideas about our events, activities, website and other matters with us.

We wish you "een gelukkig nieuwjaar", a Happy New Year. May 2011 bring you all health, happiness and success.

Warm regards,

Micha Helbig
President NCCA

ABOUT US

The Netherlands Chamber of Commerce Australia (Inc.) provides a business networking forum for its members in a professional and social atmosphere, through meetings, events, trade delegations, and promotions.

We have a strong and active presence in Victoria, with members emanating from diverse industries such as banking, retail, IT, tourism, hospitality and the cultural and services sectors. Our activities focus on events that enable our members to meet and network.

OUR VISION, we aspire to be the primary forum where the community with links to The Netherlands meet and network for business.

OUR MISSION, our purpose is to provide an effective business network for our members who have an affinity with The Netherlands.

OUR VALUES, we will support our vision and purpose by being:

- Business-focused - the central theme for everything we do.
- Dutch-linked - our Dutchness is clearly recognisable in what we do.
- Open and inclusive - anyone can join and when they do we make sure they are made welcome and totally involved.
- Fun and contemporary - being a member is an enjoyable and valuable experience because our activities are relevant and progressive in nature.
- Facilitative - the Board is the enabler to meet the objectives of the Chamber.

ANCODS stands for the Australian Netherlands Committee on Old Dutch Shipwrecks and was set up in 1972 following a bilateral agreement between the Australian and Netherlands governments regarding the wrecks of Dutch East India Company (VOC) ships off the coast of Western Australia. When in the 1960s four 17th and 18th century VOC shipwrecks were discovered off the West Australian coast, the ensuing looting and souvenir hunting required action in order to safeguard the wrecks and wreck sites. This led to their protection under the Western Australian State Government legislation (Museum Act 1963 later amended to Maritime Archaeology Act 1973).

It also clarified the legal and international issues between the Dutch government - who had inherited the assets of the bankrupt VOC in 1800 -, the Australian government, the Western Australian State government and the WAM. By 1620 the Vereenigde Oost-Indische Compagnie (VOC - United Dutch East India Company) had established a Dutch-Asian and associated intra-Asian shipping network linking the Netherlands to lucrative spice trading areas in Persia, India, the southeast Asian archipelago and Japan.

The VOC's main Asian trading and cargo exchange post was Batavia (today's Jakarta) and it was there that the Batavia (1629), Vergulde Draeck (1656), Zuytdorp (1712) and Zeewijk (1727) were headed before they were wrecked off the rough Western Australian coast. Their skippers had been instructed to use the roaring forties to sail east across the Indian Ocean and head north before the Australian coast. Remarkably, these four VOC ships and one English vessel are the only known ships of this period to be lost there.

The discovery of the wreck sites in the 1950s and 1960s could not have been possible without the availability of scuba diving gear. That opened up a new world under water, one for which no appropriate protective legislation was in place. In rapid sequence the wrecks of the four VOC ships were discovered or identified: Vergulde Draeck and Batavia (1963), Zuytdorp (1964) and Zeewijk (1968).

Subsequently, both the Vergulde Draeck and Batavia were damaged so badly by looters that the WAM decided to excavate them starting in 1972. Later the other shipwrecks followed.

NCCA FEBRUARY AT HOME

Karstens conference and training centres are conveniently located in the Melbourne and Sydney CBD. Their facilities and services consist of: conference/training rooms, computer training rooms, mediation/arbitration rooms, serviced/virtual offices and video conferencing facilities. In addition to these core services they can provide a range of others including conference catering, cocktail functions, accommodation and car parking. Their varied client base ranges from major corporate organizations through to small businesses hosting a variety of events including presentations, product launches and corporate training. At Karstens IT support staff and operational staff all have a background in hospitality. This combined with an efficient booking and management system ensures that the individual needs of every patron and the importance of every event is thoroughly understood and meticulously catered for.

For more information about Karstens please visit their web site www.karstens.com.au or join Hendrik Karsten, Managing Director and the team for the first NCCA At Home event for 2011. The evening will also profile the work of Climate Alliance which is a not-for-profit, membership based company that engages with business leaders and communicates the opportunities and risks of climate change. Climate Alliance organises events where directors can exchange experiences and ideas. In addition, they publish independent, business oriented information for Company Directors to help them inform themselves about the issues. Hendrik Karstens is a member of the Board of Advisers. MEMBER PROFILE

HAROUD de VRIES

General Manager
Great Ocean Ingredients

Personal: In January 2009 we moved with the family from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia to Australia. Despite the fact that my job is located in Warrnambool, we decided to move to Melbourne. This was mainly for the schools, but as a consequence I take the once-a-week commuting trip as a bonus – it is not bad having the office and plant along the Great Ocean Road.

My wife Marion and daughters Irene (20) and Maxime (18) enjoy living in Melbourne, but our son Wouter (23) studies in The Netherlands.

What do you miss about Holland? I don't miss Holland much; perhaps the old city centres, with their abundant history, skating on the lakes and running into old friends easily.

NCCA membership: I have been a member now for two years.

What is your business about? This is a business-to-business activity often with high volumes of product for a limited number of international customers. For general consumers our work is less visible. An important activity in dairy focuses on the manufacture of ingredients from milk for all kinds of other food-industries, such as ice cream, chocolate, bakery products, sports nutrition, clinical nutrition and infant formula.

PROFILE NEW NCCA BOARD MEMBERS

Ingrid van Dijken Robinson

Prior to joining NAB Private Wealth in 2009, I was engaged in the European private banking industry for 14 years. During my 8 years at Union Bancaire Privée, Geneva – one of Switzerland's leading and fastest growing private banks, I accumulated invaluable knowledge.

My work at NAB Private Wealth includes offering investment management expertise as well as first class service to our clients. In my current position as Private Client Executive I am responsible for a team of senior relationship managers who focus on ultra high net worth clients.

My studies have included a Masters from The Graduate Institute of International Studies in Geneva, after having been awarded a scholarship by the Swiss Embassy in The Hague. I also have a Degree in International Relations and French Culture and Language from the University of Utrecht.

Maurits Funke-Kupper

Just over eight years ago, with Mylene and our two sons, I moved from Baarn to Melbourne. As well as assimilated Dutchies in Australia, we have, and will always keep, a soft spot for the low lands of Europe. While living a real Aussie family life, we kept in touch with Hollanders in Australia, and even now we get the occasional call from someone who wants to move to Australia seeking advice or just a view from people who have done it before. Some of these casual meetings have resulted in long-lasting friendships.

My study and professional background is in industrial automation and control engineering. I initially worked for German companies in Australia, and subsequently as an independent risk management consultant. I have since established my own business Nutcracker Safety Pty Ltd which operates in the niche market of industrial process automation and risk reduction methodologies, providing consultancy and training services to companies in a wide range of industries. As a result, I am now also involved in the national advisory committee for managing the education units for instrument and industrial control technicians in Australia.

In addition to providing us with opportunities to meet other Dutchies, the NCCA fulfils an important service through the business networking opportunities that it creates. As an independent risk management consultant, building and maintaining an effective business network is very important, and so I became a member a couple of years ago.

The NCCA draws its strength from a group of volunteers, and after benefiting from their efforts for a number of years, it feels good to be able to (start) contributing myself. Feel free to contact me, or any of the other NCCA (Board) members so that you too can contribute to our successful organisation.

Patrick Ingenegeren

My career path has included international sales, marketing and business development. I was previously a National Sales Manager for out-of-home consumer products of the iconic Dutch coffee roaster Douwe Egberts and later an International Sales Manager for Webasto, a large automotive company working throughout Europe from offices in The Netherlands and Germany.

In 2004 I joined Webasto's Sydney-based Australian subsidiary before taking up a position in Melbourne in 2007 as the Business Unit Manager for Continental Automotive Australia. An internal move enabled me to change my professional focus, and I am now the Manager OEM Sales and Business Development and working with all Australian vehicle manufacturers on passenger, commercial and military projects.

My earlier studies in Utrecht included Management and Business Administration, and I have complemented this with further business studies after arriving in Australia.

Joining the NCCA in 2009 was an obvious choice for me due to the business-related and professional character of the Chamber. Being part of the NCCA Board in 2010 is fantastic, because now I can contribute and support the NCCA organisation to broaden its platform of Dutch-Australian relations, and if all goes well, to support the expansion of its membership.

CULTURAL CHAMBER: MAUVE EXHIBITIONS AT TEYLERS MUSEUM HAARLEM AND SINGER LAREN

Until January 17, 2011, Teylers Museum Haarlem and Singer Laren jointly present the most comprehensive exhibition ever held on the painter Anton Mauve, a prominent member of the Hague School.

Mauve grew up in Haarlem, just around the corner from Teylers Museum. He developed a passion for art and nature from a very early age. As a young painter he roamed the woods and fields of the Veluwe region in the east of the Netherlands, painting outdoors with fellow artists. Following the latest trend in French art at the time, his works were directly based on nature.

In 1871 Mauve moved to The Hague where he actively took part in the flourishing art scene. The Hague proved to be the ideal place for a landscape painter like Mauve, with dunes, beaches, fields and woods in the near vicinity. Here he became the famous 'master of the silver light', producing several of the highlights of his career. When he lived in The Hague, Mauve briefly taught his most famous student Vincent van Gogh. There is a special exhibition in the Prints and Drawings Room of Teylers Museum about this unique time of his life.

After a few years, Mauve escaped the hustle and bustle of The Hague and moved to the quiet and peaceful village of Laren. His internationally successful paintings of the Laren heath, as well as some of the works of his followers, are presented in the second part of this exhibition in Singer Laren.

FORTHCOMING TRADE MISSION OF DUTCH OIL AND GAS COMPANIES TO WESTERN AUSTRALIA

Perth, 21 – 25 February 2011

The Dutch sector organisation of Dutch supply and service companies in the upstream oil and gas industry IRO in cooperation with the Dutch government is organising a trade mission to Western Australia.

An overview of planned Resource projects in WA

The main aim of the mission is to visit the Australasian Oil and Gas Exhibition (23 - 25 february), where IRO will have its own 'Holland' stand.

Why a trade mission?

Western Australia is the reason that Australia is known for its oil and gas industry. 73 per cent of Australia's gas and 64 per cent of Australia's oil resources are to be found in Western Australia. The LNG industry will expand enormously in the coming years, with major projects waiting for approval. The combined potential production of the gas fields is estimated to be an impressive 90 million tons of gas per year. With these figures, it is expected Australia will enter the top 10 of gas-producing countries within a few years.

Although some Dutch companies are already active in Western Australia, the Australian resources sector has so far not been a priority for the Dutch oil and gas industry. This trade mission is about to change that. Australia offers many opportunities for interested Dutch companies.

Who can participate?

The mission is open to Dutch supply and service companies in the upstream oil and gas industry. This includes companies who already have a presence in Australia.

What is the program?

The main aim of the mission is to participate in the Australasian Oil and Gas Exhibition, which will take place in Perth between 23 and 25 February 2011. IRO will have its own Holland stand. The program will consist of four additional activities: 1 – group visits to gas and oil companies and EPC contractors; 2 – individual matchmaking; 3 – a networking reception; and 4 – a presentation on doing business in the oil and gas industry in Australia. IRO facilitates export promotion and subsidies for innovative technology. IRO offers member companies a vast national and international network.

Interested?

If you are interested in participating in the trade mission or if you have any questions, please contact Ruud Liem of IRO by e-mail: liem@iro.nl or telephone: +31 793 411 981.

About IRO

Since its foundation in 1971 IRO promotes the interests of the Dutch supply and service companies in the upstream oil and gas industry. Members cover all activities involved in the supply industry, such as engineering, field development, pipeline installation, maintenance, manufacturing and material and equipment supply, onshore as well as offshore.

IRO represents the interests of its 390 member companies towards the government and prospective customers, facilitates export promotion and subsidies for innovative technology. IRO offers member companies a vast national and international network. More recently employment and education has become a focus for the association.

RESEARCH ON OPPORTUNITIES FOR BUSINESSES IN AUSTRALIA

The Economic Affairs Division of the Embassy of the Kingdom of the Netherlands in Canberra prepares occasional reports analysing and describing specific business sectors in Australia that suggest possible opportunities for Dutch businesses. To date there are five of these available online at the Embassy's website, including Havenwerken, Waterbeheer, Breedbandtechnologie and Windenergie

The most recent report focuses on Duurzaam Bouwen in Australië. Mogelijkheden voor Nederlandse bedrijven and was released in September 2010. The report is only available in Dutch online, as it is intended primarily for use by Dutch industry. The summary is included below as is the chapter index.

Samenvatting

Duurzaam bouwen is nog een relatief nieuw concept in Australië, maar wint snel terrein nu de overheid vooral hierop inzet om zijn CO2 reductiedoelstellingen te halen. Bevordering van energie- en waterefficiëntie is een centraal onderdeel van het klimaatbeleid geworden. Om dit doel te kunnen realiseren heeft de overheid de regels voor energie en watergebruik aangescherpt. Ook zijn diverse subsidies in het leven geroepen om bedrijven en individuen te bewegen energie en waterinstallaties in huizen te verduurzamen door installatie van energie of waterbesparende apparatuur.

Daarbij komt dat de prijzen voor energie en water de komende jaren (flink) zullen gaan stijgen. Verwacht wordt dat de energieprijzen in de komende vijf jaar met 20 procent per jaar omhoog zal gaan. Ook water wordt duurder door de opzet van watermarkten en de toepassing van dure zuiveringstechnieken als desalination.

Australische huizen zijn in de regel van slechte kwaliteit (geen isolatie, tochtig, geen dubbel glas) en het land heeft dan ook een achterstand in te lopen. De kwaliteit van gebouwen in grote steden is iets beter, omdat daar al eerder een kwaliteitsslag is ingezet. Desondanks is ook bij de commerciële gebouwen nog een wereld te winnen. 90 Procent van de huizen en gebouwen in Australië is niet duurzaam.

Voor de nieuwste technieken en ontwikkelingen wordt vooral naar Europa gekeken. Dit biedt ook mogelijkheden voor Nederlandse bedrijven. Kansen liggen vooral in de cleantech, de verkoop van isolatiematerialen en dubbel glas en producten en advisering op het gebied van design, duurzame renovatie, climate proofing en stedelijke planning.

AUSTRALIANS IN BUSINESS IN THE NETHERLANDS

If you are interested in keeping up with European property and real estate, PropertyEU is a research and publishing company making an undeniable impact on the European business sector. It is headed by Judi Seebus, formerly of Mount Waverley and now a long-time resident in Amsterdam. She visits Australia annually to enjoy the summer sun at her holiday home in Somers.

PropertyEU was established in 2006 to meet the need for a truly pan-European information source for real estate professionals against the background of increasing cross-border development, financing and investing. Investors from North America, the UK and elsewhere have been increasingly attracted in recent years by the European property market, but its lack of transparency until now has often made them hesitate. [Its] mission is to help foster transparency in the European markets with [their] research and analysis of the latest developments and to help keep [readers] in touch with the leading decision makers in the European real estate sector through [their] daily news, interviews, columns and profiles.

PropertyEU publishes an online daily newsletter, monthly magazine, as well as special reports and an annual who's who of European property. Check out their website by clicking <http://www.propertyeu.info/general/home/>.

A LETTER FROM ONE OF OUR MEMBERS

WILDLIFE CONNECTIONS
Towards a better balance on our planet

Dear NCCA members and their friends,

As you may know we have been active for quite some time with wildlife protection activities. What started as the Wildlife Bushfire Appeal in February 2009 has now become a global Wildlife Connections organisation.

At this moment we have projects and related Wildlife Connections in both Australia and India and are already in the process of expanding the concept of creating new connections in Africa and other countries in Asia. One of these projects (IN10/0912) is the new Bannerghatta Bear Rescue Facility in Bangalore, India.

Bear cubs playing in their special enclosure

This bear rescue facility and sanctuary, is run by Wildlife SOS (India's most successful wildlife rescue organisation www.wildlifesos.org). During my last trip to India a couple of months ago I met the founders and many other very motivated people of this organisation and visited their centres in both Delhi and Agra. I was seriously impressed with the work that they do. Watch the video here.

A few months ago we discussed possibilities with Geeta Seshamani and Kartick Satyanarayan (founders of Wildlife SOS) to further assist them. One of which is to send an experienced volunteer (vet nurse / zoo keeper) to assist them with this bear rescue facility in Bangalore.

We took up this challenge, defined a new Wildlife Connections project (IN10/0912) and have already found two qualified candidate volunteers willing to go to India in May 2011 to support them.

FUNDRAISING OPPORTUNITIES

In order to get this project off the ground we have set a target of raising $15,000 before the 31st of March 2011. The direct costs for one volunteer staying at the rescue facility (food and housing) are $8,736 for one full year (excluding costs like flights, insurance, etc). All funds raised will be used for this project specifically.

Bunnik Tours has already agreed to support us with the flight at cost price. All funds raised will be used for this project specifically. As you can see in the picture, after our recent start we are progressing well. Having said that there is still some distance to go.

For this project we have defined four fundraisers (see next page) most of which are well underway now. Please note that 100% of the profits will go to the Bear Rescue Project (IN10/0912). If you have any ideas for additional fundraisers to support this project and/or would like to join us with our Wildlife Connections to create a better balance in our world, please contact us.

Best Regards,

Marcel Theunissen

2) ICE Coolers

www.planetice.com.au / www.icecooler.com.au

Wine Affairs (International) Pty Ltd has allocated for this project at cost ;

* 350 ICE Coolers
($30 ea / $25 ea for two or more),

* 150 ICE Lanterns
($20 ea / $15 ea for two or more)

* 50 ICE Desserts
($12,50 ea / $10 ea for two or more).

When all sold this will generate about $7,500 for this project.

3) Seville Estate Chardonnay

Graham and Margaret Van Der Meulen of Seville Estate have made two pallets of their Estate Chardonnay 2006 available at less than export price. This wine was crafted by Dylan McMahon (grandson of the famous Dr Peter McMahon and his wife Margaret who established Seville Estate in 1972) and was recently reviewed in the Gourmet Traveller and Herald Sun attracting no less than 92/100 points and 4/5 stars respectively.

James Halliday rates this wine at 94/100 points in his 2010 Wine Companion and suggests drinking it before 2013.

Those who know the Seville Estate benchmark winery will appreciate this beautiful, delicately oaked wine with a nice soft texture.

Normally this wine sells for $27 per bottle ($324 per dozen). We can offer this wine at $20 per bottle ($240 per dozen) which will save you no less than $84 per dozen. This includes postage and handling to Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney. For each dozen sold Seville Estate donates an additional $60 towards this project.

4) BIG Woop !

Galvanised Wine Group has come on board with a beautiful Ben Riggs crafted wine for daily consumption and/or parties: BIG Woop ! This wine comes in two flavours BIG Woop White and BIG Woop Red, both in 1 litre bottles. The BIG Woop White is a very easy drinking blend of Pinot Gris, Chardonnay and Viognier. The BIG Woop Red makes every afternoon after work into a party with a perfectly balanced blend of Grenache, Petit Verdot and Shiraz. More detailed information regarding this wine, including an order form is available on our website.

These wines were normally selling at about $20 per litre. We can offer these wines at $85 per case of 9 bottles. This includes postage and handling to Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney. We have secured plenty of this wine (600 cases of red and 300 cases of white). For every case (nine one litre bottles) sold, Woop Woop Wines will donate a further $10 to the bear rescue facility.
